

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method of searching and displaying information from searches that allows users to rapidly determine the most useful search objects. The method includes determining target objects linked to by objects in a search set, and displaying information about the links between objects in the search set and/or from objects in the search set to objects outside of the search set. Displays may include 2D or 3D displays or graphs of object representations, which may be formatted in independently displayable layers. Display attributes such as color, size, shape, and position may be used to convey metadata about displayed objects and/or links.

3140927_2.DOC